

THE CHANGING LANDSCAPE OF THE COLNE VALLEY

Points of interest/history

1) A great deal of history lies here, including the 12th c. St. Mary's church and the 15th c. Great Barn that John Betjeman called the Cathedral of Middlesex.

2) On your left, watch out for a memorial to Sir Barnes Wallis. Tests of his famous Bouncing Bomb were held by the Road Research Laboratory on a site here in the lead up to the attack in 1943 on the Ruhr dams in Germany by the RAF 617 Squadron immortalised in the film "The Dambusters".

3) The river is man-made, dug in the 16th c. to divert water from the River Colne to the River Crane in order to supply Isleworth Mill and feed the ornamental ponds in the grounds of the Duke's estate at Syon House.

4) The large office building is Waterside, the headquarters of British Airways.

5) The park is a former gravel working and landfill site. In the late 1990s the pollutants were removed, and the site was extensively re-landscaped, planted with 70,000 trees. It is now managed for wildlife and public recreation.

6) This river is one of the many braids of the River Colne, leaving it at West Drayton and re-joining it at Staines.

7) The Prospect is the highest point of the park. On a clear day you can see Harrow-on-the-Hill, Wembley Stadium, Windsor Castle, the North Downs and the tall buildings of central London. Both The Prospect and The Keyhole are constructed from sandstone blocks stored on this land for decades. They came from the old Waterloo Bridge in London that was demolished in 1935.

8) Between this point and Pulpit Bridge is a War Memorial to the 7 crew members of a Royal Canadian Air Force Halifax bomber which crashed here in 1944.

9) Under two yew trees just before the church is a large slab table gravestone marking the resting place of Richard Cox, a retired brewer and horticulturist of nearby Colnbrook, who first grew the famous apple cultivar Cox's Orange Pippin.

10) On your left, notice Sun House. Although much altered, it was built during the 16th c. and is the oldest residential property in Harmondsworth. It was a public house until 1912 and a butcher's shop until much later. Remnants of the inn sign support may still be seen on the wall, and the hooks for carrying the joints of meat can be seen at the far end of the building.

For points of interest/history, turn over when you see this

1) The walk starts in Harmondsworth village.  (1) Facing the Five Bells pub, turn down Moor Lane to its left and follow the road as it bends to the right.  (2) Soon afterwards cross a small humpback bridge over the Duke of Northumberland's River and then turn immediately left through the kissing gate.  (3) Walk with the river on your left. Turn right when you reach Swan Lake, following the path around the lake.  (4) Take the first right through a kissing gate to reach a road (Accommodation Lane).

3) Continue along the path with Wraysbury River on the right.  (6) Cross the second footbridge on the right as the path bends to the left.

4) Head north up the slope, emerging onto the moor. Continue ahead to a stone circle known as "The Prospect" and further north along the ridge to a landscape feature known as "The Keyhole"  (7) After The Keyhole, continue around the hill, bearing left on a track towards the edge of the park and then down past some rejuvenated ponds near the M25. Follow this curving track until you reach a path junction. Continue ahead through the kissing gate and right across a bridge over Wraysbury River.  (8)

5) Continue ahead and just before reaching another bridge turn left through the kissing gate and right along the path, following the River Colne on your right. After about ¼ mile turn right over a bridge then right at the next junction towards Saxon Lake, following the path.

6) At the end of the lake turn right through a kissing gate and turn right onto a footpath. Go through a kissing gate into St Mary's graveyard, crossing it diagonally towards the church  (9) Continue south along the churchyard path with the church on your right back to the Five Bells pub.  (10)
